It Rains In Sikeston

The biggest bit of local news up to Thursday morning, according to farmers and those depending upon crops for a living is the fact that rain visited this vicinity that day. A light sprinkle about noon, another shower about 1:45 o'clock and continued threatening weather was thankfully received, and more will be appreciated.

THE EDITOR SAYS—

While Sikeston has always been able to brag on her pretty girls and handsome matrons, we can likewise brag on having some mighty handsome new cars. The editor of The Standard continues to walk as his ship must have sunk.

The continued dry weather in this vicinity has hit the crop of tomato plants pretty hard at the Sikeston Greenhouse. Occasional showers call for plant setting and without the showers it is estimated that two hundred thousand plants will be a loss.

Col. Bennett Clark, candidate for United States Senator on the Democratic ticket, will visit both New Madrid and Mississippi Counties Saturday of this week in the interest of his candidacy. He will deliver a political speech in Chariton Saturday evening to which Sikeston voters are invited as his talk in Sikeston and Benton on Decoration Day will be non-political.

Lon Swanner, Street Commissioner, after seeing the fish pond at the editor's house, felt so bad that he didn't have one in the Tower Park, that he resolved to dig one in the early fall when he had the time, that would make all other pond owners envious. O. K. here, Lon.

Every bed in the Emergency Hospital was occupied Wednesday morning, all major cases, two of them at least close on to miraculous. One of them shot through the intestine and the other had a section of intestine removed. Some of these cases are charity cases and none of them rich. Three white nurses on duty and one colored assistant. A wonderful institution doing a wonderful work. God should certainly bless these Doctors and nurses.

We suppose we have no right to ask, but we wonder what has been accomplished by the Experiment Station established north of Sikeston a couple of years ago. There is something doing out there from the little plots of ground in cultivation, but we would just like to know who is getting the benefit from the experiments.

Southeast Missouri pride should give Russell Dearmont an almost solid vote in the primary election. He is clean morally and politically, and is in every way fitted for the position. We have nothing to say against Francis M. Wilson for he is a high type gentleman, but he is way off up there so far away from home. We are told a few Democrats down this way are for Wilson believing if he is our next Governor they will fall into a State job of some sort. We are told, too, that once in a while you will find a man running for office down this way who is against Dearmont. Every one of these fellows should be beaten in the primary, if they stay in the race that long. Hop to it, Southeast Missourians, and let's put Russell in.

To feast the eye is sometimes satisfying, so if you can do no better, stroll around the business district and gaze at the handsome display of goods in the show windows. It is worth while and the price marked on wearables is very reasonable.

The Standard editor appreciates the following compliment from J. H. Wolpers, editor and publisher of the Poplar Bluff American Republic: "I think The Sikeston Standard is one of the best edited papers in Missouri".

A visit to the patients in the hospital Thursday morning. We were greeted by some friends of patients as "doctor" because we stopped to visit a short while with the sick. If we can just be a dispenser of encouragement and cheerfulness to the afflicted, we'll be happy for that. We hope and pray our visits reach the spot.

Patrolman Leads Posse in Capturing 5 Bank Robbers Three Hours After Fredericktown Holdup; $1055 Missing

Fredericktown, Mo., May 25.—Approximately three hours after five bank bandits held up and robbed the Security Bank here of $1255 the robbers were behind bars in the county jail at Farmington, thanks to the prompt response of State Trooper Howard Turnbull, working with two deputy sheriffs and a posse of local citizens.

Those arrested gave their names and addresses as follows:

Angelo Strazzo, 25, 409 Olive St., Kansas City; Pete Greco, 21, 415 Locust St., Kansas City; Joe Modo, 23, Kansas City; Sam Thomas, 27, 865 N. Dearborn St., Chicago, and Fred Conway, 28, Longview, Texas.

Fired at Auto

The men drove up to the bank in an automobile and three entered the bank. Cecil Phillips, a garage mechanic working across the street, saw the robbery in progress and gave the alarm. Several persons armed with weapons began shooting at the robbers' car and the driver called to his companions to come out.

During the shooting one of the tires of the robber car was punctured, but the men drove west on Highway 70. A short distance out of Fredericktown they stopped an automobile, removed the driver, Clarence Honea, and took his car, abandoning their own.

Patrolman Turnbull organized a posse and gave chase, finally catching up to the robbers and forcing their car into the ditch. The men took refuge in a wooded area. The posse surrounded the area and Turnbull led a small group into the woods and five of the robbers surrendered without resistance.

Under Sentence

One of the robbers, Conway, is under a 23-year sentence in the Missouri penitentiary for robbing the Bank of Caledonia recently. He escaped from the county jail at Potosi, where he was brought to be a witness against a suspect in the Caledonia robbery.

The men were taken to the coun-

Sikeston, Benton, Morehouse Troops
Take First Honors Here Tuesday Night at District Scout Rally

The old reliable Troop 41, Sikeston, and Troop 50 of Benton won first and second honors in the District Boy Scout Rally conducted at the local high school athletic field Tuesday night.

In order of rating, the district Scout troops placed as follows:

Blue ribbon troops, those with 110 points or more, Troop 41 Sikeston, Troop 49, Morehouse, Troop 50 of Benton.

Red ribbon troops, those with 90 to 110 points, Troop 42, Sikeston.

White ribbon troops, with 30 to 90 points, Blodgett Troop No. 46, and Sikeston Troop 43.

Troops were based upon the point system, taking into consideration demonstrations of Scout work, number of invited guests present, O'Grady performance and participation in stunts.

An audience of several hundred persons filled the football bleachers, over ran the sidelines of the field, and many of those present remained seated in automobiles at the ends of the field.

The evening's Scout activities began with a camp setup in which each of the five troops participated. Then followed a flag raising ceremony and a number of contests.

Demonstrations of Scout work included Neckerchief drill, Fire rescue, and Star Study Drill.

Nine boys were accepted at the court of honor as first-year or Tenderfoot Scouts. These included Clifford Gipson, Raymond Tomay, G. B. Greer, Edward Matthews, Bill Keller and Clay Taylor, all of Troop 42; Roland Reed, Troop 43, Purvis Orrel and Wayne Linn of Troop 41.

$500 FINE ASSESSED AT THIRD TRIAL OF CALE BRADFORD

New Madrid, May 25.—The Circuit Court trial of Cale Bradford, who shot Jesse Fulgrum in 1927 at Steele during a dance, was heard the latter part of last week. Bradford received a fine of $500.

At his first trial, Bradford was given a fifteen-year prison sentence. His second trial was reversed on error, resulting in the third last week.

Court adjourned for this term last Saturday.

ANNUAL PICNIC AND BARBECUE TO BE HELD IN CHARLESTON JUNE 1

St. Henry's Parish, Charleston, will sponsor its annual picnic and barbecue at the Charleston high school grounds Wednesday, June 1. Various amusements will be provided for the entertainment of visitors, and music will be furnished by the high school band of that city. Those sponsoring the event promise plenty of barbecued meats of all kinds, coffee and cold drinks—enough to stop any ordinary hunger pangs.

BEN HART NOT GUILTY OF STEALING CHICKENS; PALS PLEADED GUILTY

A jury in Circuit Court at Benton Monday gave Ben Hart, Sikes negro, a clear slate on the charge of stealing chickens from the residence of Pete Glick, near here last April. His two pals, Pete Blank and Bob Davis, pleaded guilty to the charge before Judge Jos. W. Myers, and both are serving four months each in the county jail for safe keeping.

Night Officer Gid Daniels noticed a sack of hens lying on the steps of produce concern here early one April morning and waited for the owner to appear. Two negroes showed up and the third was arrested after being implicated by his buddies. At the trial Monday, Blank testified Hart was with them the night Mr. Glick lost his 14 hens, while Davis said he was not. The Court gave Hart the benefit of any possible doubt.

THIRD ROUND OF SEMO GOLF PLAY SCHEDULED SUNDAY

Dexter plays Charleston, Sikeston meets Cape Girardeau, and Poplar Bluff ties into Kennett Sunday in the third set-to of the annual Southeast Missouri Round Robin Golf Tournament.

The Bluffians are not expecting much opposition on the local links against Kennett to hold their lead, a tie with Sikeston for first place. The Sikeston club on the other hand will have its hands full in the Charleston links, where Cape Girardeau is expected to give the locals run for the money.

Sikeston and Poplar Bluff are in a tie for first honors with two wins and no losses each, while Cape Girardeau is a strong contender for second honors.

PAUL BOWMAN ARRESTED WEDNESDAY EVENING

Paul Bowman was held in the city holdover Wednesday night, charged with carrying a concealed weapon, being drunk and using abusive language.

Bowman is without question one of the most brilliant salesmen in the State. His all-time record of selling three trainloads of milling company products on one trip several years ago still stands. Less than six weeks ago, after being called off the road, he placed orders for six carloads in one afternoon, using wire service to previous contacts only.

In recent years, however, he has been afflicted with the drink habit, which seems to have affected his brain. He became very abusive and threatening again Wednesday evening, and finally as a last resort, officers brought him to the city jail for safe keeping.

He was released on bond to his father and was induced to enter a Memphis Hospital for treatment.

His trouble is largely a mental condition caused by excessive use of alcohol. His many friends here join members of the family in hoping that medical treatment can soon restore him to normal.

Rolls—McFarland Hospital received coat of paint inside and outside.

SILVER JUBILEE SALE STARTS WITH RUSH THURSDAY MORNING

A satisfactory crowd of buyers from Sikeston and nearby towns were at hand Thursday morning at 9 o'clock awaiting the opening of the doors of the Buckner-Ragsdale Store here.

The three stores in the unit, Charleston, Cape Girardeau and Sikeston, placed approximately 157,000 pieces of sales literature, handbills, complete copies of The Standard, and Southeast Missouri advertisements in the hands of potential customers during the past week advertising their Silver Jubilee Sale—celebrating the completion of 25 successful years in business.

One item which has attracted much attention locally is the offer of redeeming silver money dated 1907 at double its face value. In other words, a silver dollar dated 1907, buys $2.00 in merchandise.

George Lough and the local sales force has been receiving dozens of compliments on the general appearance of the store. A color scheme of silver and blue is carried out throughout the shop, and it is very pleasing.

A rule of long standing was broken to sponsor this general, store-wide sale. Never before in the history of the Sikeston store has such a sale been promoted. Closeouts have been advertised on particular lines at the "end of the season", but a general sale touching every department is something new.

W. B. A. RALLY TO BE HELD HERE JUNE 6

The W. B. A. rally will be held in Sikeston Monday, June 6, at the I. O. O. F. Hall. Mrs. May A. C. Sommers of St. Louis, State Field Director, will be the guest of honor. A delegation is expected from Caruthersville, Holland, Linn, Marston, New Madrid, Poplar Bluff, Dexter, Parma, Kennett, Morehouse, Cape Girardeau, Illinois and Charleston. Dinner will be served from 12 to 1:30 in the hall.

A surveying crew out of the Highway Department was scheduled to begin Friday or Saturday this week.

Tom Malone and Major H. E. Dudley were appointed as a committee of two to visit the playing field and locate the diamond, so that work of grading the place can be completed Sunday. The State Highway Department has agreed to furnish a power grader that day only, provided actual expenses are met by the Association.

A surveying crew out of the Highway Department also donated its time after working hours Wednesday staking out the ten-acre plot, arranging for two 30-foot entrances to the field, and placing the property lines.

Quite a strip of land now comes out to the highway, and eliminates one of the main objections to purchasing that particular tract. It was rumored for some time that the club would find itself separated from the highway by a 30-foot strip of land on the west. That problem has been taken care of very nicely.

President Fuchs reported that a total of 74 shares of stock had been contracted for.

L. A. SCHOTT APPOINTED APIARY INSPECTOR IN SCOTT COUNTY

The appointment of L. A. Schott of Benton as Deputy Bee Inspector for Scott County, has been announced by Dr. K. C. Sullivan, State Apiarist, Jefferson City.

Mr. Schott is an experienced beekeeper, familiar with the problems of the bee industry and as a Deputy has charge of the bee inspection work in Scott County.

Successful beekeeping depends upon the control and eradication of American foul brood, and Mr. Schott will be found ready to assist every beekeeper in Scott County in the elimination and control of this bee disease.

JUDGE CAMILLE KELLEY PLEASES LARGE COMMENCEMENT CROWD

23 High School Diplomas and 79 Eighth Grade Certificates Awarded at Annual Closing Exercises

The high school gymnasium was packed to the eaves, so to speak, Monday night for the annual commencement exercises at which time twenty-three girls and boys received high school diplomas and seventy-nine eighth grade graduates received high school entrance diplomas.

The program was opened with the procession, "America the Beautiful", after which the orchestra played, "The Old Refrain" by Kreisler. Rev. Leslie Garrison gave the Invocation, followed by two numbers, "By Dimpled Brook", by Dunhill, and "The Lotus Flower" by Schumann, rendered by the high school Glee Club.

The first woman to deliver a commencement address at the Sikeston high school was here Monday night in the person of Judge Camille Kelley, Judge of the Juvenile Court at Memphis, Tenn. Mrs. Kelley delivered one of the most interesting, inspirational and instructive addresses ever delivered at any of the local commencement exercises. The main topic of her address was "Speed" and how we must adjust ourselves to keep up with the speed of the age.

Judge Kelley spoke for an hour and some odd minutes. When she finished, the audience applauded until the speaker made her bow in acknowledgment. When a Sikeston audience registers its approval in that manner after 75 minutes of talking, the speaker can rest assured that she or he has delivered something worthwhile, and something out of the ordinary in the experience of local folks.

It was a talk crammed with illustrations, and illustrations from life are always interesting whether found in a book, on a printed page or delivered from the platform. Instead of haranguing the audience registers its approval in that manner after 75 minutes of talking, the speaker can rest assured that she or he has delivered something worthwhile, and something out of the ordinary in the experience of local folks.

The man who said that this is a time to get bargains in brains was right. A North Dakota school board is handing out teachers' positions to the lowest bidders.

We tremble lest that $25,000,000 tax on cosmetics in the revenue bill should ultimately drive the roses from the cheeks of our dear ones.—Boston Herald.

Over the radio, "Why do you call your child Morphine Jackson?" the colored woman was asked. "Well, I heard the white folks say morphine was the product of the wild poppy, and so is this child".

In a sense, the Lindbergh matter may be regarded as dimly closed, but until the kidnapers and murderers have been reaped the just consequences of their acts, law enforcement agencies will have to continue to eat the bread of shame, of which there seems to be liberal supply.

They tell it on a certain man in Sikeston that is worth repeating. A candidate called on him, asking for his vote. The candidate was asked if he wanted both his vote and influence, "No", said the candidate, "just your vote". The candidate figured his influence might hurt him while his one vote would help.

The management has no particular desire to overly brag, but can't help but crow over the size of the Tuesday edition of The Standard. In advertising it carried 1863 inches of advertising in the 16 pages, which we believe to be the high figure for any country weekly in the Central West. It required a trifle over one and a half tons of print paper for the edition.

In answer to a question as to when people began to bury their dead, an authority says that fear of a dead body led primitive man to dispose of it. Who knows what primitive man thought about a dead body? A critical examination of much that Science passes off as indisputable truth will show that it is based on nothing more substantial than an old-fashioned curbside guess.

In recent weeks about every Democratic member of Congress from Missouri has stated he favored letting the people vote on the wet and dry proposition, but when it comes down to permitting a tax on beer that would bring in five hundred million dollars to help the taxpayers of the Nation, but three of them come clean. They were Shannon, Cochran and Williams. They are the three that should be returned to Congress, and so far as we are concerned the rest can come home and try to make a living and pay the taxes.

The average American who became a voter in 1914 had to work 25 days that year to pay his taxes. Ten years later, he had to work 46 days to pay his taxes. In 1931, he had to work 61 days to pay his taxes. In just 17 years, his days of labor for tax-paying purposes increased from 25 to 61. And yet the Congress of the United States has shown that after more than five months of furious discussion it is unable or unwilling to reduce the enforced labor of the taxpayer by one minute.—Daily Oklahoman.

A complacent philosopher has burst into print with a three-column sermon on the text: "I like the depression". He finds that conditions enable him to wear his old and comfortable clothes, chat at the blacksmith shop, and spend his evenings at home amid a quiet serenity that he has not known hitherto. The weak point of his argument is that he is asking man to match the resources of his mind against adversity. Few are great enough to do that.

We hardly know how to express our appreciation for the loyal support and hearty co-operation of our office force in issuing the Tuesday edition of The Standard. It was a big undertaking to print 13,000 copies of a 16-page paper and to start the work Friday morning after the paper was in the mail. It was finished on time and the last truck load in the postoffice by 5:30 Tuesday morning. Seven of our assistants came on duty Monday morning at 7:00 and two of them off at 3:30 Tuesday morning, the other five at 6:00. A terrible grind but our big Babcock Optimus press never worked better and the folder, perfect. The old man and the two girls were not called upon to serve such long hours.

H. S. Green, of Bloomfield, Democratic Congressional Committee men for the Fourteenth District, was a Sikeston visitor Tuesday forenoon and paid The Standard office a call. Mr. Green was accompanied by George Munger, an attorney of Bloomfield. These gentlemen were going over this Senatorial District seeking sentiment for the candidacy of Mr. Green for the U.S. Senate to succeed Ralph Wammack, who has represented this Senatorial District for several terms, and will not be a candidate again. Mr. Green has been active in politics for many years and is well and favorably known in this, the 23d Senatorial District of Missouri.

The government of India realized a revenue of about $18,800,000 from the export of opium in the year 1924-25. Now it is exported only for medicinal purposes.

That much opium smuggled into the United States, at the extortionate prices the users pay, would easily pay off the treasury deficit.

LOCAL AND PERSONAL FROM CANALOU

(By Miss Ethel Wright)

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Gheeske and children, Mrs. Charles Gruen and daughters, Misses Esther and Selma, and sons, Nelson and Elmer, Mr. and Mrs. Poke Townsend motored to Big Springs the day. They were joined by Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Thomas and children and Edgar Fry of Blodgett. They report a very enjoyable day.

The Canalou baseball team met some strong competition Sunday when they played the Benton nine at Benton. The score was 7 to 2 in favor of Benton.

Mr. and Mrs. James D. Kochel, Miss Appalone and Owen Taul and Byron Spencer motored to East Prairie last Friday night to attend the senior play at that place. The play had been advertised through the papers for Friday night, May 20, but this was a mistake. On arriving at the school building, they found a school party in progress instead of the play. The play was to be given Tuesday night, May 24.

Mrs. L. E. Wells and children visited friends in Cape Girardeau from Saturday until Monday. Mrs. C. W. Harris accompanied Mrs. Wells to Cape Girardeau, but returned on the afternoon train.

Miss Beulah Newman is spending a few weeks visiting her mother near Advance.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. Wes Smith on Wednesday, May 18, a girl.

The telegraph wires were removed from the Frisco depot here Tuesday of last week. The people of this community were very sorry to have this done. As a result, L. E. Wells, who has been the agent here for the past six years, has been transferred to Leachville, Ark. In the six years that Mr. Wells has been in charge of the station here, he has at all times conducted the office and all business relative to same in a manner that in our opinion reflects great credit to himself as well as the Frisco Railroad Company. We hope that in the near future that the wires will be placed in the depot again here and that it will be possible for him to return.

E. H. McClure of Poplar Bluff has charge of the Frisco depot here at this time. He and his family are making their home for the present with Mr. and Mrs. O.

H. Crumpecker. Mr. McClure is only a fill-in man and will be here for only a short time.

Miss Maxine Harrison is spending a few days visiting her brother, Emery, and other relatives in St. Louis.

T. A. Slack of Sikeston was here a short time Monday on business.

Mr. and Mrs. Jess Reeves and Miss Eliza Ellen Browning shopped in Morehouse Saturday.

Miss Eliza Browning made a trip to Lavalle Monday, where she had been called to meet with the school board at that place. Miss Browning was employed to teach the primary room at that place for the ensuing year.

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Coppage, Mr. and Mrs. Harley Barnes and Jno. D. Barnes were in New Madrid a short time Saturday.

BLONDE, 20, LEAPS 8 STORIES, BREAKS LEG

San Jose, Cal., May 24.—Miss Irene Johnson, attractive blonde of 20, leaped from the eighth story of a San Jose hotel. She fell through the top of a parked motor car onto the cushioned seat.

Taken to a hospital today, physicians found a broken leg her only injury. The police record said the woman sought to end her woes.

FIRST LOAD OF COTTON GATHERED IN 1932 IS SOLD

Caruthersville, May 24.—The first load of cotton to be gathered in 1932 was sold here last week—but it was part of the 1931 crop.

J. L. Thomas has a farm a few miles south of Caruthersville. He let part of his 1932 crop stand in the field. This spring he planted one end of the field in new cotton and when the plants were up high enough to cultivate, picked the balance of his 1931 crop and sold it, 1700 pounds in all to the Farmers Union Gin here, receiving one cent a pound. It will not be ginned, however, until the gin opens for fall business.

Keytesville—Jasper Coy and Harry Nye purchased barber fixtures of late Sidney Wilks.

Liberty—Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Berkley of Mulberry, opened branch of their funeral service here.

LOCAL MEN START RENT-A-CAR COMPANY

The Rent-A-Car U-Drive It Company was started here last week by Ernest Kellett, operator of the Barnsdall B Square Oil Station on West Malone Avenue, and Ernest Kellett. Both are local men.

According to Mr. Kellett, the machines will be available day or night by calling phone number 59. Mr. Kellett lives back of the station and will be glad to accommodate the public at any time. The cars are rented on a mileage-time basis.

MANY WHO SET FOREST FIRES NEVER KNOW IT

Washington, May 24.—"Have you caused a forest fire this year?" is the impertinent question asked by a bullet of the American Game Association, which added: "A large percentage of forest fires are set by persons who never know that they are to blame".

If you are in the habit of tossing lighted cigarette or cigar stamps carelessly toward the road side as you drive along, or of knocking your pipe ashes out into the breeze, you may be an unintentional forest-fire-bug—and never know it, the Association warned.

Forest fires yearly take an increasing toll of forests, wild life and of human lives, in spite of growing expenditures for fire protection, the bulletin said. Carelessness on the part of the increasing number of visitors to and through forested areas during the dry season is believed to account for most of the fire menace.

An increase of 49 per cent in smokers' fires on the national forests during the late five years was a score against carelessness announced recently by the U. S. Forest Service. Dropped matches and burning tobacco ignited the national forests in 1872 places during 1931, an increase of 31 per cent over 1930. Fires set by neglected or escaped campfires increased 37 per cent.

Eggs are better than any spring tonic, says the Bureau of Home Economics, United States Department of Agriculture. They are rich in iron for the formation of good red blood, vitamins that promote growth and assist in bone formation, and protein for body building and repair. One specialist in child nutrition says that one egg yolk a day in the young child's diet is a means of preventing rickets, and most authorities agree that every child over two years old should have a whole egg every day if possible.

New Madrid County School Notes

Milus R. Davis
Since reporting receipt of State aid application blanks for rural schools, we have had inquiries about similar blanks for high school districts, but the latter has not been sent us yet.

Every act of any board member should be consecrated to that one principle. We can't get good board members by merely wishing for them but we must be active when voting time comes.

Those preparing to take the teachers' examination on June 3 and 4, will do well to review the eighth grade subjects, peruse over the State course of study, and scan the reading circle books.

It was our pleasure to make the Eighth Grade Commencement address to a class of 17 graduates at Risco the night of May 18, which we enjoyed even as much as the audience suffered. Despite the overflowing auditorium, the attention was superior and good order prevailed. Risco is in a farming community but the season is not too busy to prevent the patrons from dropping their check lines to attend a school exercise. Such school spirit is commendable. Superintendent Liley has been re-elected there for the third term.

Of all the rural pupils taking the final examination this spring the following rated the highest: Louise Armstrong, Hyman; Chas. Roberts, Grape Ridge; Helen Goebel and Clay Johnson, New Hope. These were the only pupils to average above 70%.

When next school election rolls around, we hope all qualified voters will appear at the polls and cast their vote for the director who is willing to do the best for the children. This is much better than staying at home and then raising a howl after the election is over because it wasn't done right.

A director gets no pay for his service and therefore is serving the community at a sacrifice, and he must be vitally interested if he is to give the proper attention to this mammoth task. Of course, no one should seek the office for personal gain.

loss from sheet erosion and no formation of gullies.

Soil losses from unterraced areas on the farm planted to corn averaged 140 tons an acre—50 to 100 times as great as the losses from terraced land. The average loss from terraced land in three corn fields, land varying in slope from 8 to 16 feet in a hundred, was 2.3 tons an acre. The smallest loss was little more than one ton an acre. It occurred on land with an average slope of 15 feet in a hundred, protected by level terraces.

On a steep, rough hillside planted in corn, with terraces having 2 inches fall in 100 feet and corn rows parallel to the terrace lines, the soil carried away was only 85 pounds more than one ton per acre. These experiments show that even when steep land is planted to corn and even in a year when the seasonal rains are both numerous and heavy, erosion losses are almost negligible if the land is protected properly with terraces.

On terraces that had grades of 6 inches in 100 feet, more than twice as much soil was lost as on level 1 terraces. According to measurements, 1.00 ton of soil an acre was lost with level terraces as compared with 2.72 tons an acre with terraces having 6 inch grades.

Among the curious things going on in this land of ours, the following may be mentioned. The grandson of Kaiser Wilhelm of Germany is working in an auto factory in Detroit. Twenty thousand persons turned out to see a California frog break a record at a frog-jumping match. A Chicago boy has made a twenty-mile per hour auto from the remains of a discarded washing machine. One investigator has discovered that Ben Franklin originated daylight saving, and another finds that George Washington raised tobacco but hated its use. Through a clerical error, a quantity of envelopes prepared by a Congressman to mail copies of a very dry Prohibition speech were filled with pamphlets by a very wet fellow-legislator.

ENGINE-WASTE costs American motorists millions of dollars a year.

Engine-Waste results when inferior gasoline fails to deliver the satisfactory performance you pay for. It is very costly indeed.

The high signs of Engine-Waste are familiar to every man who drives a car: Knock, slow pick-up, dilution of oil, slow starting, gummy valves.

All these troubles mean wasted gasoline—Engine-Waste. All of them cut down mileage, boost gasoline costs.

To cut down Engine-Waste to a minimum in your car, use the fuel that is specially produced for this very purpose—Shell Gasoline. Here at last is a perfectly balanced motor fuel. It is made possible only by a remarkable process—by many years of continuous improvement in refining and blending.

Every lot of Shell is engine-tested at the refinery. Every lot must prove to us first what it will do for you.

If freedom from trouble, if satisfactory performance and maximum mileage mean anything to you—fill your tank today with Shell. It reduces Engine-Waste and saves you money.

Bennett Clark's Candidacy

Col. Bennett Clark is well remembered by many people outside Missouri as the efficient parliamentarian of the House of Representatives during the time his distinguished father, the late Champ Clark, was speaker. To the people of Missouri he is known as an able, lawyer, an outstanding citizen of courage, character and ability.

He is a Democrat of the "old school" as we like to say of those who adhere to the principles of Jefferson and Jackson. He could not be otherwise with his inheritance. There is a distinct trend on the part of Democrats back to the fundamentals that made the party great in victory and enabled it to experience defeat without disaster.

Col. Clark has captivated the Democrats of Missouri because he represents all that a Democrat should be and his candidacy strengthens as the date approaches for the Democratic primary for United States senator. If nominated and elected he will reflect credit on the party, the State, and on the name he bears so creditably. —Commercial Appeal.

W. L. Bouchard, publisher of The Lead Belt News, and J. S. Hubbard, executive Secretary of the Missouri Press Association, paid The Standard a short visit Saturday forenoon. They were calling on all the newspaper fraternity in the interest of the Southeast Missouri Press Association that will hold its next meeting in the Lead Belt June 10 and 11. We expect to be present with a part of the force.

Newspaper readers experienced a chill a few days ago, when they read that a boy of eighteen had been hanged in Canada for his success as a pistol artist. The paper had hardly been thrown away before the news went round that a seventeen-year-old lad had been gathered in on this side of the line, for shooting it out with the police. Those who favor capital punishment can reason that it is high time that the death penalty be handed out to Youth as well as to Age. Others may be inclined to argue that as a deterrent from crime, capital punishment appears to be of doubtful value.

Replacements in most lines can be had at a nominal cost, but a serious proposition confronts the Del Rey Hotel management. Once upon a time, he secured a whiskey barrel and cut it in two to use as flower pots. He placed them at the side entrance, and strange to say it looks like every car that cuts in by the side entrance hits these whiskey flower pots, and now they are about wrecked with no replacement handy.

Throughout the land there is growing talk of "tax strikes". Many property owners are simply unable to pay the exorbitant levies demanded. We are gradually approaching a time when it will be cheaper to tear down many buildings, thus creating unimproved properties, or allow the property to be taken over by the State, than to pay taxes. Is it any wonder that the best minds of the country are regarding the tax problem as the most serious, most far-reaching and most menacing issue the people now face?

ROOST ROBBER TAKES 5-YEAR PRISON TERM

New Madrid, May 26.—Frank Torrents of Canalou, under a four-year parole, pleaded guilty in Circuit Court here to stealing chickens in the night time on four counts, and two charges of tampering with an automobile. He received a sentence of five years in the Missouri Reformatory at Booneville.

Constable Jess Wilkins accompanied Torrents and Walter Rose, juvenile, guilty of grand larceny, to the reformatory today. Rose pleaded guilty to the charge and received a three-year term.

LIONS WILL "TRY" JOE SARSAR NEXT WEEK IN "COURT"

Finding a huge pair of dice in the coat pockets of Joe Sarsar at the weekly luncheon meeting of the Sikeston Lions Club Wednesday at the Hotel Del Rey, was deemed circumstantial evidence sufficient to warrant a "trial" of the accused next Wednesday evening, June 1.

The next meeting, by the way, will be ladies' night. Lions and their lady friends, their wives or the wives of others, will meet at the Hotel Marshall dining room, and the trial of Joe Sarsar, charged with being in a crap game, will be one of the high spots of the evening.

It happened this way:

Frank Miller, day clerk at the hotel, slipped into the dining room during the song service being led by Wilbur Ensor. He whispered into the ear of John G. Powell, entertainment committee man for the day. The singing stopped.

"Gentlemen", said Mr. Powell,

"word has just arrived that one of our number was surprised by the law just a few minutes before this meeting.

He was one of a number involved in a crap game".

The suggestion that Tail Twister Benny Topper search the room, was followed almost immediately by the discovery in Sarsar's pockets of a pair of he-man dice.

M. M. Beck and his guest, Judge Wylie P. Wilkerson, were pulled into the mess by implication.

After quite a bit of cross talk, Judge T. B. Dudley was appointed attorney for the defendant, Joe Sarsar, and Wilkerson named prosecutor.

SENIOR-JUNIOR BANQUET AT CHARLESTON TAKES THEME FROM HIGHWAYS

Charleston, May 20.—The annual banquet tendered the Senior class of Charleston high school each year by members of the Junior Class—was held last Thursday evening in the dining room of the Methodist church and served by the ladies of that church.

Covers were laid for one hundred and twenty guests—at tables which were beautifully decorated in asparagus ferns and red and white roses arranged in crystal vases.

Baskets filled with red and white peonies were used throughout the room, and streamers of red and white dropped in graceful festoons from above. The lights were shaded in red and white.

The program for the evening road construction signs—"Detour", was the "Highway of Life", and "Danger" signals, were included in the decorations. In one corner a police station awaited the law breakers.

In the main entrance to the dining room, a miniature highway was arranged on a large table—with growing trees on the road side and various signs.

Place cards were in shape of the State of Missouri. Each bore a favor of a small car, truck, police whistle, road hogs, or something pertaining to the highway. Each young lady received a large fancy straw hat and the young men a bandana handkerchief.

The program opened with a welcome address given by the President of the Junior Class, Miss Virginia Whitehead.

The response was given by Julius Wigdor, president of the Senior Class.

Other talks representing the highway were given as follows:

Patrolman—Richard Oliver
Slab—J. H. Marshall
Song—Lonesome Pines—Mary Oliver, Jane Mulkey, Jeneva Cawett, Jane Priester, Miss Kathryn Edwards, pianist.

Markers—Marjorie Haw
Signs Along the Way—Martha Hequembourg
"Thumbing"—Song by Jean Shelby
Vehicles and Hitch Hikers—Jas. Atterberry
At the Crossroads—Mary J. Miller

Members of the Junior Class were assisted in entertaining by their sponsor, Miss Mary Lee Simpson.

Chapter XXIII

Corporal Michael Fitzpatrick could hardly wait until Saturday morning to strut before his youthful companions in his bright new uniform. Breakfast was hardly over before he gathered up his night-stick, put his cap on at an acquaint slant, and sauntered forth. His father had not been home all night, so he missed the morning ritual of a bear-hug and an admonition to be a good boy.

He paused on the doorstep, swung his stick, and began to whistle. It was nine o'clock and no school. All the other little boys in the neighborhood would be out. But he saw none of them, and furthermore he did not see Big Monty Monaghan, the cop on the corner. He was the one he wanted to impress more than anyone else. Who was Monaghan, anyway? Just an ordinary flat-foot. And who was he?—Corporal Michael Fitzpatrick!

So he strolled down toward the corner, a brave little figure who might have been a cop in Lilliput, twirling his stick as big as any policeman, and imbued with the authority of a corporal. He had gotten midway down the block when a car, long, sleek, black, with side curtains up, drew to the curb. Two men, pinch-backed coats and derbies set at the same angle, jumped out.

"Hello, there, copper!" one of them greeted, his thin lips wreathed in the semblance of a smile. •

"Hello!" exclaimed Mickey proudly. "Your dad—you know, the Chief—told us to pick you up—we're goin' on a raid," said the second.

"Whatcha goin' raid?" asked Mickey, striking a pose, one hand behind his coat-tails, the other swinging his rosewood.

"We got a big raid on—come on!" the first dapper-dressed young man caught Mickey by the arm.

"S-a-a-y!" exclaimed Mickey, drawing back. "Where's yer badge—are you dicks?"

Both threw back their coat lapels and displayed badges, which they quickly covered. Mickey looked at them admiringly. But he would not be manhandled like this. He drew back.

"Take yer hands off'n me," he said, with dignity. "I'll get in—where's my dad?" •

"He's at the place we're goin' to raid," said one of the dapper young men. "Hurry up."

"Make it snappy—we ain't got much time," seconded the other.

Mickey looked around to see whether anyone had witnessed this recognition of his authority. But he saw no one. He climbed into the car. The two young fellows with derbies got in behind him. The door slammed. The chauffeur, half looking back, muttered an "Okay," and the car shot forward.

"Hit it up, Mike!" cried one of the men, above the roar of the engine.

"Where're we goin'?" demanded Mickey, leaning back comfortably.

"You'd be surprised, copper!" said the second gunman. •

Mickey looked at him a second, and then sensing the evil look in his eye, drew back his club. The other one grabbed it. Mickey began to fight with tooth and toe. He kicked the derby of the young man on his right, and sank his teeth into the arm of the man on his right.

A big hand closed over his mouth so that Mickey would have screamed. For Mickey fought his battles silently. But the big hand closed off his wind, and he could not breathe; and the car had not gone ten blocks before the little fellow sank back with a sigh.

In a cigar-store down on the river front, where the fog almost obscured the entrance and where it bellowed in when the door was open, a solitary figure entered. The man, his cap down on his forehead, his head lowered in his coat-collar, walked up to the counter. •

"Who are you?" demanded the small fellow.

Daisy looked at him a moment. "Who are you?"

"I'm Corporal Michael Fitzpatrick!" stoically exclaimed the little fellow.

"Who are you?"

"Gimme a package o' cigarettes," he said in muffled tones.

CHAPTER II

Night Court was about to begin. The room was two-thirds filled. Among the spectators were a number of women, mostly poorly clad, but the men outnumbered the women four to one. Inside the railing was a long line of prisoners; near them almost an equal number of policemen, their accusers. The prisoners were also mostly women-painted creatures of uncertain age, with here and there an older woman, and a few girls innocent of make-up, with pinched features, clothes that needed the pressing iron and the needle. The room was warm with the odor of human beings in need of a bath, the scent of strong perfume.

Sergeant Cassidy arose saying in a loud voice: "Hats off! His Honor, the Judge."

As the magistrate stepped from his private office into the court room the mass of humanity rose up, the men removing their hats, until he had taken his seat at the bench, when they sank back in their seats. The last person in the court room to sit down was a tall spare man with trouble with her. She darn near clutched the hand off me this time," said the Judge.

"Attaboy, Judge," and the tipsy old woman leered up at him. The three youths, ready to press his "And don't come back here again," added the Judge in his severest tones.

"Come back, is it? I didn't come here; I was brang, and it took two big husky policemen to do it! I may be only a woman, but—"

"Take her away," thundered the Judge.

Three hard-faced young men, well but boudly dressed, were brought up to the railing. Henry Crawford stepped back up to the little platform in front of the bench and spoke to the Judge in a low voice.

"This is my case, Your Honor."

Moffett, with scarcely a glance at the three accused, ran his eyes hastily over the complaints that the court clerk had placed before him.

A detective in plainclothes stood by charge. The Court addressed him.

"You are the complainant in this case. What have you to say about it?"

"Why should I care?" asked the girl, desparingly. "Why should I care about anything?" She started to step upon the platform in front of the bench, to get closer to the Judge.

"Get back there, you!" cried an officer, busting up.

"No," said Moffett, gently. "Let her come up."

On the platform her eyes were nearly on a level with Moffett's and she looked intently at him for a time, then suddenly opened her pocketbook and dumped out its contents—a soiled handkerchief and a dozen or two of pawn tickets.

"What are those?" asked the Judge, fingering the papers gingerly.

"Look at them, Judge," said the girl, bitterly. "You probably never saw anything like them before. They're pawn tickets. Everything I had is gone—nothing more to pawn, no money, nothing to eat."

"That's no excuse for breaking the law," was the Judge's only comment to her sudden outpouring.

"If that isn't, then what is?" continued the girl in the same bitter, rebellious voice. "Where'll I go? I want to work and I can't, because there isn't any work to be had. I want food and when I ask for it they think I am trying to sell myself. Well, I will. Sure, I'll sell myself! Who wants to buy me?"

The murmuring, bustling among the spectators had ceased at the girl's passionate outburst. The drama had reached a climax; they were waiting expectantly for the untwisting of the knot. The intelligent appearing elderly man did not come forward as did many of the others; he was motionless, but his eyes, going alternately from the face of the judge to that of the girl, and then back again, missed nothing.

The short silence was broken by Moffett's sentence, pronounced less harshly than his previous judgments:

"Ninety days."

The waiting officer touched her arm.

"Come on, you."

The girl did not speak again. She picked up the soiled handkerchief, the pawn tickets, stuffed them into her bag, and turned to descend from the platform.

She looked particularly young and forlorn as she faced the audience for a moment, almost defiantly. She could not have been more than eighteen—twenty at the most.

The arresting officer took her arm and led her down the aisle, on the way to prison.

She looked particularly young and forlorn as she faced the audience for a moment, almost defiantly. She could not have been more than eighteen—twenty at the most.

The arresting officer took her arm and led her down the aisle, on the way to prison.

Then, for the first time since court opened, the white-haired man moved in his seat. His head turned to the girl, and he seemed to be on the point of rising to follow her. His eyes were stern, his lips pressed firmly together. If he had an intention of following her, he quickly gave up the idea, and leaned back in his seat, his eyes again fixed upon the face of Judge Moffett, who was watching the progress of the girl towards the door. When the door had closed he called:

"Next case." His voice was perfectly emotionless. The scene just enacted before him apparently had had no more effect upon him than the sentencing of the street-walkers.

The white-mustached man frowned at the seeming indifference of the committing magistrate, then did rise up and quietly leave the court room.

In the early hours of the morning the last of the prisoners had been fined, freed or sent to prison and Judge Moffett appeared on the sidewalk in front of the Night Court followed by Grogan, and signalled to a passing taxi-cab. His face was calm and composed as it had been when he opened court. He did not appear to be tired. As he stepped out of the cab he was met for the taxi, an old, disheveled man who walked with a limp, approached him, a bundle of papers under his arm.

"Good morning, Judge Moffett. Here's your paper, sir."

The Judge smiled pleasantly at the old fellow, stuck the newspaper in his overcoat pocket without looking at it.

"How are you anyhow, Jimmy?"

"Fine, thank you, Your Honor."

Moffett gave the old fellow a dime a cheerful grin, and stepped to the taxi which had drawn up in front of the court entrance. As he climbed in he called a good night to Grogan.

"Good night, Boss. See you in the morning." Then he gave the address to the chauffeur: "Thirteen twenty-one West Ninety-third street."

Moffett settled back in the cab, carefully bit off the end of a cigar, lighted it and began to smoke it in quiet enjoyment. After a few puffs he pulled the newspaper from his pocket, and opened to the front page headlines. An expression of amazement and horror spread over his face at what he saw; his mouth opened and the cigar fell unheeded to the floor of the cab.

"GOVERNOR ORDERS INVESTIGATION OF COURTS" screamed the streamer clear across the page of the newspaper. A three-column lead below read: "SUPREME COURT JUSTICE OSGOOD OUTLINES HIS PLANS. THE NIGHT COURT IS THE FOCAL POINT OF GRAFT AND CORRUPTION!"

Judge Moffett stared at the headlines as though stunned. Smoke curling up from the still lighted cigar on the floor of the taxi caught his eye. He let the newspaper fall on his knee, stamped out the cigar, and tapped smartly on the window. The driver opened the window and turned his head.

"Take me to nine eighty-one Park avenue. And quickly!"

The chauffeur stepped on the gas so smartly that the car leaped forward like a horse into whose sides spurs have been dug.

"What did she say to you, Officer?"

"She asked me if I didn't want to take her to supper," said the detective, a smirk spreading over his face.

"And what did you say to that?"

"I asked her what she wanted to do afterwards. She said she didn't care."

"Ninety Days in the Workhouse!"

white hair, a closely-trimmed white mustache, an intellectual cast of features. He was very quiet and unobtrusive, but his keen eyes watched every detail of the varying scenes that took place at the Judge's bench.

The court clerk carrying a bunch of papers stepped to the magistrate's side, and laid the complaints on the bench. Before he had time to step down a policeman detached himself from the head of the line of waiting prisoners and complainants, his hand on the arm of a hard-faced, moderately well-dressed young woman. The Judge glanced hastily at the first of the bunch of complaints, then looked down at the prisoner.

"You are charged with loitering on the corner of Fifth avenue and Forty-second street. What have you got to say for yourself?"

"Judge, I—"

Moffett interrupted her unceremoniously and barked at the policeman:

"What do you know about her?"

"She's an old timer, Your Honor."

"Ten dollars!" said the Judge in a hard voice.

The same procedure was followed in three or four more cases of girls loitering on the streets. Moffett merely glanced at the complaints, heard the arresting officer's accusations in a bored manner, and meted out the sentences: "Ten dollars," "Thirty days," "You here again? Ninety days," "Five dollars." Some of the girls simpered; some flung the Judge a hard look; a few hung their heads in shame, making no answer to the complaints against them. A good drama, one played every night, to an audience of the curious, of sight-seers, professional bondsmen, pimps, young women of no uncertain occupation, friends of the accused, now and then a relative.

The clock-like procedure of the court, the listening to complaints, pronouncement of judgment, was interrupted by the cries of a drunken old woman who was being dragged by two policemen in front of the Judge, each holding her by an arm. When they reached the railing, the old woman clutched it eagerly, holding herself erect by the strength of her grasp. The coat of one policeman was torn, the other's hand was wrapped about with surgical bandages.

"Well?" questioned Moffett, looking up from the complaint. "What has she done?"

"Your Honor, I was going along the street peacefully and this officer came up and insulted me. He said I'd been drinking."

"And you're drunk now," said the Judge, severely.

The woman removed her hands from the railing to gesture freely her denial.

"Your Honor, I never touched a drop in my life. I'm a hard-working old woman and I—"

She had been swaying against the railing and now lost her balance. With a wild, vain attempt to seize the railing again, she sank to the floor. The two policemen seized her by the arms and raised her to her feet.

"Have any trouble with her?"

Moffett asked the struggling policeman, a gleam of cold amusement in his eyes.

ON ROUTE 55 MATTER

Scott County has until June 3, next Friday, to accept or reject a proposal of the State of Missouri to build Highway 55 from Morley to Chaffee.

Demands of property owners along the proposed route were deemed unreasonable by the County Court, when the total was more than the $14,000 originally allocated for purchase of right-of-way. Court costs and litigation in the meantime, have increased that figure to more than $15,000. One or the other of two things must happen, the Court must increase its original appropriation by $1197, or landowners must lower their demands for right-of-way by that much.

It Rains In Sikeston

The biggest bit of local news up to Thursday morning, according to farmers and those depending upon crops for a living is the fact that rain visited this vicinity that day. A light sprinkle about noon, another shower about 1:45 o'clock and continued threatening weather was thankfully received, and more will be appreciated.

THE EDITOR SAYS—

While Sikeston has always been able to brag on her pretty girls and handsome matrons, we can likewise brag on having some mighty handsome new cars. The editor of The Standard continues to walk as his ship must have sunk.

The continued dry weather in this vicinity has hit the crop of tomato plants pretty hard at the Sikeston Greenhouse. Occasional showers call for plant setting and without the showers it is estimated that two hundred thousand plants will be a loss.

Col. Bennett Clark, candidate for United States Senator on the Democratic ticket, will visit both New Madrid and Mississippi Counties Saturday of this week in the interest of his candidacy. He will deliver a political speech in Charlestown Saturday evening to which Sikeston voters are invited as his talk in Sikeston and Benton on Decoration Day will be non-political.

Lon Swanner, Street Commissioner, after seeing the fish pond in the editor's house, felt so bad that he didn't have one in the Tower Park, that he resolved to dig one in the early fall when he had the time, that would make all other pond owners envious. O. K. here, Lon.

Every bed in the Emergency Hospital was occupied Wednesday morning, all major cases, two of them at least close to miraculous. One of them shot through the intestine and the other had a section of intestine removed. Some of these cases are charity cases and none of them rich. Three white nurses on duty and one colored assistant. A wonderful institution doing a wonderful work. God should certainly bless these Doctors and nurses.

We suppose we have no right to ask, but we wonder what has been accomplished by the Experiment Station established north of Sikeston a couple of years ago. There is something doing out there from the little plots of ground in cultivation, but we would just like to know who is getting the benefit from the experiments.

Southeast Missouri pride should give Russell Dearmont an almost solid vote in the primary election. He is clean morally and politically, and is in every way fitted for the position. We have nothing to say against Francis M. Wilson for he is a high type gentleman, but he is way off there so far away from home. We are told a few Democrats down this way are for Wilson believing if he is our next Governor they will fall into a State job of some sort. We are told, too, that once in a while you will find a man running for office down this way who is against Dearmont. Every one of these fellows should be beaten in the primary, if they stay in the race that long. Hop to it, Southeast Missourians, and let's put Russell over.

To feast the eye is sometimes satisfying, so if you can do no better, stroll around the business district and gaze at the handsome display of goods in the show windows. It is worth while and the price marked on wearables is very reasonable.

The Standard editor appreciates the following compliment from J. H. Wolpers, editor and publisher of the Poplar Bluff American Republic: "I think The Sikeston Standard is one of the best edited papers in Missouri".

A visit to the patients in the hospital Thursday morning. We were greeted by some friends of patients as "doctor" because we stopped to visit a short while with the sick. If we can just be a dispenser of encouragement and cheerfulness to the afflicted, we'll be happy for that. We hope and pray our visits reach the spot.

Patrolman Leads Posse in Capturing 5 Bank Robbers Three Hours After Fredericktown Holdup; $1055 Missing

Fredericktown, Mo., May 25.—Approximately three hours after five bank bandits held up and robbed the Security Bank here of $1255 the robbers were behind bars in the county jail at Farmington, thanks to the prompt response of State Trooper Howard Turnbull, working with two deputy sheriffs and a posse of local citizens.

Those arrested gave their names and addresses as follows:

Angelo Strazzo, 25, 409 Olive St., Kansas City; Pete Greto, 21, 415 Locust St., Kansas City; Joe Modo, 23, Kansas City; Sam Thomas, 27, 865 N. Dearborn St., Chicago, and Fred Conway, 28, Longview, Texas.

Fired at Auto

The men drove up to the bank in an automobile and three entered the bank. Cecil Phillips, a garage mechanic, working across the street, saw the robbery in progress and gave the alarm. Several persons armed with weapons began shooting at the robbers' car, and the driver called to his companions to come out.

During the shooting one of the robbers' car was punctured, but the men drove west on Highway 70. A short distance from Fredericktown they stopped an automobile, removed the driver, Clarence Honea, and took his car, abandoning their own.

Patrolman Turnbull organized a posse and gave chase, finally catching up to the robbers and forcing their car into the ditch. The men took refuge in a wooded area. The posse surrounded the area and Turnbull led a small group into the woods and five of the robbers surrendered without resistance.

Under Sentence

One of the robbers, Conway, is under a 23-year sentence in the Missouri penitentiary for robbing the Bank of Caledonia recently. He escaped from the county jail at Potosi, where he was brought to be a witness against a suspect in the Caledonia robbery.

Sikeston, Benton, Morehouse Troops Take First Honors Here Tuesday Night at District Scout Rally

The old reliable Troop 41, Sikeston, and Troop 50 of Benton won first and second honors in the District Boy Scout Rally conducted at the local high school athletic field Tuesday night.

In order of rating, the district Scout troops placed as follows: Blue ribbon troops, those with 110 points or more, Troop 41 Sikeston, Troop 49, Morehouse, Troop 50 of Benton.

Red ribbon troops, those with 90 to 110 points, Troop 42, Sikeston. White ribbon troops, with 30 to 90 points, Blodgett Troop No. 46, and Sikeston Troop 43.

Troops were based upon the point system, taking into consideration demonstrations of Scout work, number of invited guests present, O'Grady performance and participation in stunts.

An audience of several hundred persons filled the football bleachers, over ran the sidelines of the field, and many of those present remained seated in automobiles at the ends of the field.

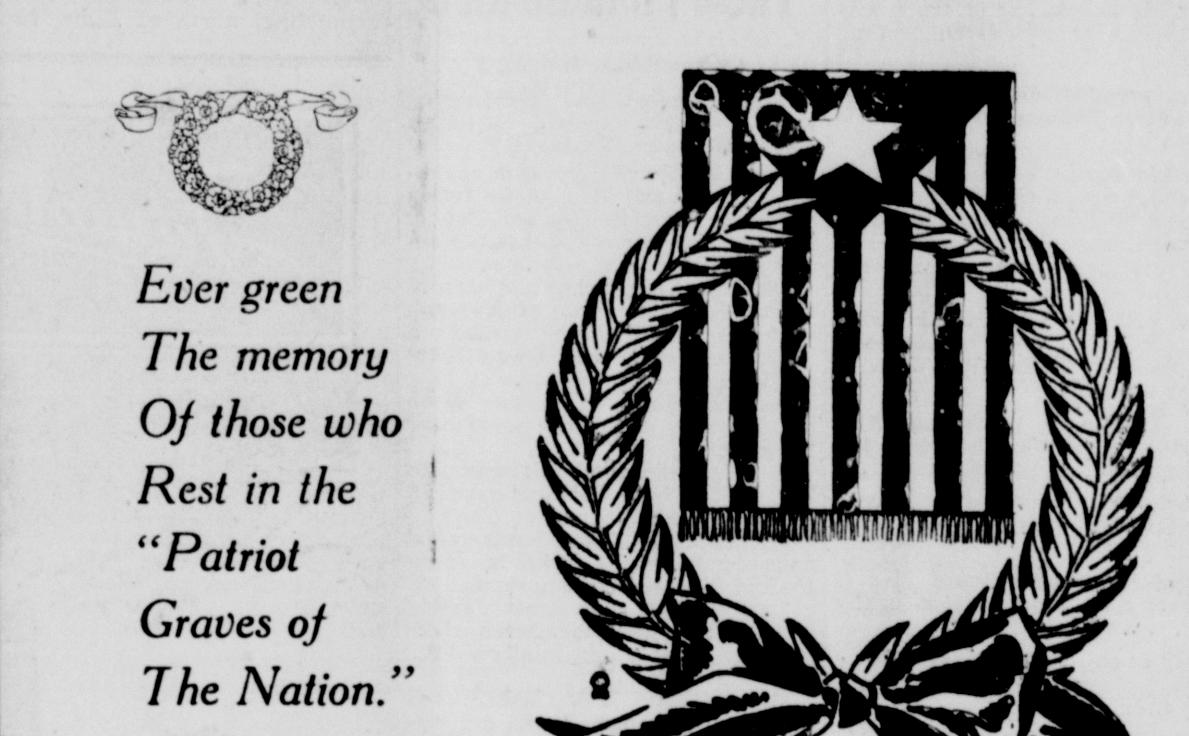

The evening's Scout activities began with a camp setup in which each of the five troops participated. Then followed flag raising ceremony and a number of contests.

Demonstrations of Scout work included Neckerchief drill, Fire rescue, and Star Study Drill.

Nine boys were accepted at the court of honor as first-year or Tenderfoot Scouts. These included Clifford Gipson, Raymond Tomay, G. B. Greer, Edward Matthews, Bill Keller and Clay Taylor, all of Troop 42; Roland Reed, Troop 43, Purvis Orrel and Wayne Linn of Troop 41.

Second class—Johnny Bryant, Daniel Crain, Harold Hinson, Harold Hight, Willis Shipman of Troop 49; George Rayburn, Paul Skidmore of Troop 41; John Shupert, Robert Sizles 41.

First Class—Joe Dover, Merlin Taylor of Troop 41; Wm. Rogers

$500 FINE ASSESSED AT THIRD TRIAL OF CALE BRADFORD

New Madrid, May 25.—The Circuit Court trial of Cale Bradford, who shot Jesse Fulgrum in 1927 at Steele during a dance, was heard the latter part of last week. Bradford received a fine of $500.

At his first trial, Bradford was given a fifteen-year prison sentence. His second trial was reversed on error, resulting in the third last week.

Court adjourned for this term last Saturday.

ANNUAL PICNIC AND BARBECUE TO BE HELD IN CHARLESTON JUNE 1

St. Henry's Parish, Charleston, will sponsor its annual picnic and barbecue at the Charleston high school grounds Wednesday, June 1. Various amusements will be provided for the entertainment of visitors, and music will be furnished by the high school band of that city. Those sponsoring the event promise plenty of barbecued meats of all kinds, coffee and cold drinks—enough to stop any ordinary hunger pangs.

BEN HART NOT GUILTY OF STEALING CHICKENS; PALS PLEADED GUILTY

A jury in Circuit Court at Benton Monday gave Ben Hart, Sikeston negro, a clean slate on the charge of stealing chickens from the residence of Pete Glick, near Pete last April. His two pals, Pete Blank and Bob Davis, pleaded guilty to the charge before Judge Jos. W. Myers, and both are serving four months each in the county jail.

Night Officer Gid Daniels noticed a sack of hens lying on the steps of a produce concern here early one April morning and waited for the owner to appear. Two negroes showed up and the third was arrested after being implicated by his buddies. At the trial Monday, Blank testified Hart was with them the night Mr. Glick lost his 14 hens, while Davis said he was not. The Court gave Hart the benefit of any possible doubt.

THIRD ROUND OF SEMO GOLF PLAY SCHEDULED SUNDAY

Dexter plays Charleston, Sikeston meets Cape Girardeau, and Poplar Bluff ties into Kennett Sunday in the third set-to of the annual Southeast Missouri Round Robin Golf Tournament.

The Bluffians are not expecting much opposition on the local links against Kennett to hold their lead, a tie with Sikeston for first place. The Sikeston club on the other hand will have its hands full on the Charleston links, where Cape Girardeau is expected to give the locals a run for the money.

Sikeston and Poplar Bluff are in a tie for first honors with two wins and no losses each, while Cape Girardeau is a strong contender for second honors.

PAUL BOWMAN ARRESTED WEDNESDAY EVENING

Paul Bowman was held in the city holdover Wednesday night, charged with carrying a concealed weapon, being drunk and using abusive language.

Bowman is without question one of the most brilliant salesmen in the State. His all-time record of selling three trainloads of milling company products on one trip several years ago still stands. Less than six weeks ago, after being called off the road, he placed orders for six carloads in one afternoon, using wire service to previous contacts only.

In recent years, however, he has been afflicted with the drink habit, which seems to have affected his brain. He became very abusive and threatening again Wednesday evening, and finally as a last resort, officers brought him to the city jail for safe keeping.

He was released on bond to his father and was induced to enter a Memphis Hospital for treatment. His trouble is largely a mental condition caused by excessive use of alcohol. His many friends here join members of the family in hoping that medical treatment can soon restore him to normal.

SILVER JUBILEE SALE STARTS WITH RUSH THURSDAY MORNING

A satisfactory crowd of buyers from Sikeston and nearby towns were at hand Thursday morning at 9 o'clock awaiting the opening of the doors of the Buckner-Ragsdale Store here.

The three stores in the unit, Charleston, Cape Girardeau and Sikeston, placed approximately 157,000 pieces of sales literature, handbills, complete copies of The Standard, and Southeast Missouri advertisements in the hands of potential customers during the past week advertising their Silver Jubilee Sale—celebrating the completion of 25 successful years in business.

One item which has attracted much attention locally is the offer of redeeming silver money dated 1907 at double its face value. In other words, a silver dollar dated 1907 buys $2.00 in merchandise.

George Lough and the local sales force has been receiving dozens of compliments on the general appearance of the store. A color scheme of silver and blue is carried out throughout the shop, and it is very pleasing.

A rule of long standing was broken to sponsor this general store-wide sale. Never before in the history of the Sikeston store has such a sale been promoted.

That matter was originally left to a committee of two, M. B. Beck and E. F. Schorle. The committee has visited several sawmills in the district, and finally decided to purchase the necessary lumber from an East Prairie man at a figure which had not been matched locally. Delivery of the material was scheduled to begin Friday or Saturday this week.

Tom Malone and Major H. E. Dudley were appointed as a committee of two to visit the playing field and locate the diamond, so that work of grading the place can be completed Sunday. The State Highway Department has agreed to furnish a power grader that day only, provided actual expenses are met by the Association.

A surveying crew out of the Highway Department also donated its time after working hours Wednesday.

JUDGE CAMILLE KELLEY PLEASES LARGE COMMENCEMENT CROWD

23 High School Diplomas and 79 Eighth Grade Certificates Awarded at Annual Closing Exercises

The high school gymnasium was packed to the eaves, so to speak, Monday night for the annual commencement exercises at which time twenty-three girls and boys received high school diplomas and seventy-nine eighth grade graduates received high school entrance diplomas.

The program was opened with the processionals, "America the Beautiful", after which the orchestra played, "The Old Rugged Cross" by Kreisler. Rev. Leslie Garrison gave the Invocation, followed by two numbers, "By Dimpled Brook", by Dunhill, and "The Lotus Flower" by Schumann, rendered by the high school Glee Club.

The first woman to deliver a commencement address at the Sikeston high school, was here Monday night in the person of Judge Camille Kelley, Judge of the Juvenile Court at Memphis, Tenn. Mrs. Kelley delivered one of the most interesting, inspirational and instructive addresses ever delivered at any of the local commencement exercises. The main topic of her address was "Speed" and how we must adjust ourselves to keep up with the speed of the age.

Judge Kelley spoke for an hour and some odd minutes. When she finished, the audience applauded until the speaker made her bow in acknowledgment. When a Sikeston audience registers its approval in that manner after 75 minutes of talking, the speaker can rest assured that she or he has delivered something out of the ordinary in the experience of local folks.

It was a talk crammed with illustrations, and illustrations from life are always interesting whether found in a book, on a printed page or delivered from the platform. Instead of haranguing her audience and members of the class about the perils of modern life, Judge Kelley outlined the heritage of the past—elements of speed, of accomplishment, in social, economic and political life. She asked the audience and members of the class about the perils of modern life.

The announcement of awards was made by Supt. Roy V. Ellise. Z. W. Killgore was honor graduate. Second honors went to Miss June Marshall, Wm. Foley, Commander of American Legion Post No. 114 presented the American Legion Citizenship medals to Olga Matthews and Harrison Tanner, the Auxiliary Citizenship prize in the eighth grade to Clint H. Denman, Jr., high school American History prize to Z. W. Killgore. Martha Jane Marshall was winner of the D. A. R. prize in American History. The U. D. C. souvenirs to the class leaders of the year were presented by Z. W. Killgore, senior; Madeline Moser, Junior; Ruth Moore, Sophomore and Evelyn Alford, Freshman.

W. C. T. U. awards were also presented. They were as follows: Essay winners, June Marshall, Senior; Mary Lou McCoy, Junior; Merlyn Taylor, Sophomore; Mary Emma Powell, Freshman; Mildred McCoy, Eighth grade and Imogene Marshall, seventh grade. Joe Dover was winner of the poster contest.

Following the announcement of awards high school entrance certificates were presented to the seventy-nine eighth grade graduates.

Stockholders Vote Pushing Ball Project

Lumber for the grandstand at the Sikeston ball park will be delivered this week-end, and two local experts on baseball matters will plot the location of a diamond this afternoon. That was the principle thought expressed at a meeting of stockholders in the Sikeston Baseball Association last Wednesday evening at the City Hall.

N. E. Fuchs, president of the organization, attempted to resign from the position "for the good of the Association", but by unanimous vote of those present, he was induced to remain in the saddle. Some unfounded criticism has been voiced with reference to Mr. Fuchs selling lumber for the grandstand. He repeated his statement made earlier in the season, that under no consideration would he or the company he represents locally sell or buy for the baseball association one foot of lumber.

President Fuchs reported that a total of 74 shares of stock had been contracted for.

The man who said that this is a time to get bargains in brains was right. A North Dakota school board is handing out teachers' positions to the lowest bidders.

We tremble lest that $25,000.00 tax on cosmetics in the revenue bill should ultimately drive the roses from the cheeks of our dear ones.—Boston Herald.

Over the radio, "Why do you call your child Morphine Jackson?" the colored woman was asked. "Well, I heard the white folks say morphine was the product of the wild poppy, and so is this child."

In a sense, the Lindbergh matter may be regarded as dismally closed, but until the kidnapers and murderers have been reaped the just consequences of their acts, law enforcement agencies will have to continue to eat the bread of shame, of which there seems to be liberal supply.

They tell it on a certain man in Sikeston that is worth repeating. A candidate called on him, asking for his vote. The candidate was asked if he wanted both his vote and influence, "No," said the candidate, "just your vote." The candidate figured his influence might hurt him while his one vote would help.

The management has no particular desire to overly brag, but can't help but crow over the size of the Tuesday edition of The Standard. In advertising it carried 1863 inches of advertising in the 16 pages, which we believe to be the high figure for any country weekly in the Central West. It required a trifle over one and a half tons of print paper for the edition.

In answer to a question as to when people began to bury their dead, an authority says that fear of a dead body led primitive man to dispose of it. Who knows what primitive man thought about a dead body? A critical examination of much that Science passes off as indisputable truth will show that it is based on nothing more substantial than an old-fashioned curtain guess.

In recent weeks about every Democratic member of Congress from Missouri has stated he favored letting the people vote on the wet and dry proposition, but when it comes down to permitting a tax on beer that would bring in five hundred million dollars to help the taxpayers of the Nation, but three of them come clean. They were Shannon, Cochran and Williams. They are the three that should be returned to Congress, and so far as we are concerned the rest can come home and try to make a living and pay the taxes.

The average American who became a voter in 1914 had to work 25 days that year to pay his taxes. Ten years later, he had to work 46 days to pay his taxes. In 1931, he had to work 61 days to pay his taxes. In just 17 years, his days of labor for tax-paying purposes increased from 25 to 61. And yet the Congress of the United States has shown that after more than five months of furious discussion it is unable or unwilling to reduce the enforced labor of the taxpayer by one minute.—Daily Oklahoman.

A complacent philosopher has burst into print with a three-column sermon on the text: "I like the depression". He finds that conditions enable him to wear his old and comfortable clothes, chat at the blacksmith shop, and spend his evenings at home amid a quiet serenity that he has not known hitherto. The weak point of his argument is that he is asking man to match the resources of his mind against adversity. Few are great enough to do that.

We hardly know how to express our appreciation for the loyal support and hearty co-operation of our office force in issuing the Tuesday edition of The Standard. It was a big undertaking to print 13,000 copies of a 16-page paper and to start the work Friday morning after the paper was in the mail. It was finished on time and the last truck load in the postoffice by 5:30 Tuesday morning. Seven of our assistants came on duty Monday morning at 7:00 and two of them off at 3:30 Tuesday morning, the other five at 6:00. A terrific grind but our big Babcock Optimus press never worked better and the folder, perfect. The old man and the two girls were not called upon to serve such long hours.

H. S. Green, of Bloomfield, Democratic Congressional Committee man for the Fourteenth District, was a Sikeston visitor Tuesday forenoon and paid The Standard office a call. Mr. Green was accompanied by George Munger, an attorney of Bloomfield. These gentlemen were going over this Senatorial District seeking sentiment for the candidacy of Mr. Green for the State Senate to succeed Ralph Wammack, who has represented this Senatorial District for several terms, and will not be a candidate again. Mr. Green has been active in politics for many years and is well and favorably known in this, the 23rd Senatorial District of Missouri.

Unaccustomed As I Am—

Authority states that approximately one hundred and fifty greater political slayings have occurred in the years from 1831 to 1926. "Pancho" Villa, the Mexican bandit, is listed among them, assassinated after years of ravaging in two nations, he is listed among immortals of the world.

Newspapers look upon the slayings of two leading citizens of two nations as a reign of terror. In 1925 there occurred the assassination of fifty-one men of renown. To achieve the death of eight men two hundred killed in the bombing of Cathedral of Sveti Kral in Sofia, where the funeral of General Georgieff was being pronounced.

LOCAL AND PERSONAL
FROM CANALOU

By Miss Ethel Wright

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Gheske and children, Mrs. Charles Gruen and daughters, Misses Esther and Selma, and sons, Nelson and Elmer, Mr. and Mrs. Poke Townsend motored to Big Springs near Van Buren and spent the day. They were joined by Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Thomas and children and Edgar Fry of Blodgett. They report a very enjoyable day.

Miss Esther Gruen, who had been employed at Cape Girardeau for the past several months, returned home Saturday for a few weeks vacation.

The Canalou baseball team met some strong competition Sunday when they played the Benton nine at Benton. The score was 7 to 2 in favor of Benton.

Mr. and Mrs. James D. Kochel, Miss Appalone and Owen Taul and Byron Spencer motored to East Prairie last Friday night to attend the senior play at that place. The play had been advertised through the papers for Friday night, May 20, but this was a mistake. On arriving at the school building, they found a school party in progress instead of the play. The play was to be given Tuesday night, May 24.

Mrs. L. E. Wells and children visited friends in Cape Girardeau from Saturday until Monday. Mrs. C. W. Harris accompanied Mrs. Wells to Cape Girardeau, but returned on the afternoon train.

Miss Debbie Greer shopped in Morehouse Saturday.

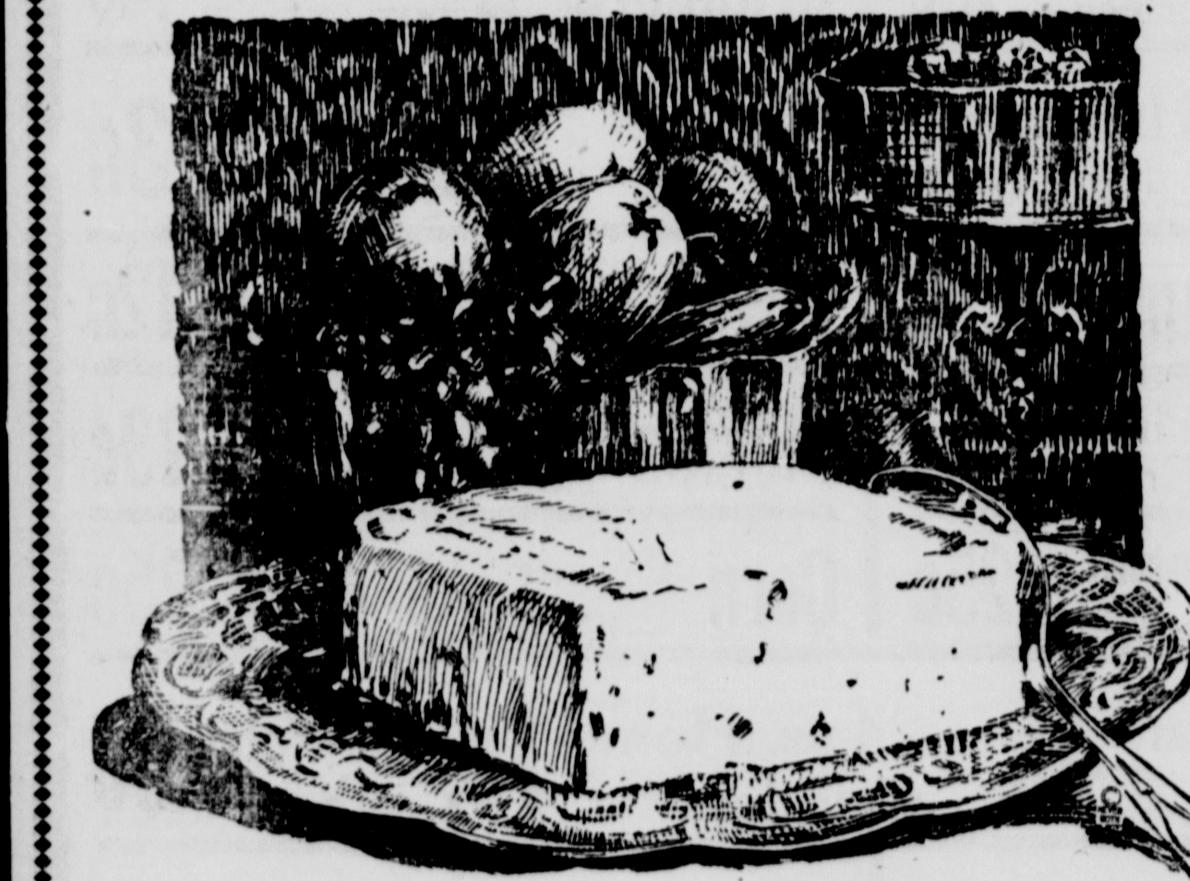

Mrs. Clarence Adams shopped in Sikeston, Friday.

Miss Beulah Newman is spending a few weeks visiting her mother near Advance.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. Wes Smith on Wednesday, May 18, a girl.

The telegraph wires were removed from the Frisco depot here Tuesday of last week. The people of this community were very sorry to have this done. As a result, L. E. Wells, who has been the agent here for the past six years, has been transferred to Leachville, Ark. In the six years that Mr. Wells has been in charge of the station here, he has at all times conducted the office and all business relative to same in a manner that in our opinion reflects great credit to himself as well as the Frisco Railroad Company. We hope that in the near future that the wires will be placed in the depot again here and that it will be possible for him to return.

E. H. McClure of Poplar Bluff has charge of the Frisco depot here at this time. He and his family are making their home for the present with Mr. and Mrs. O.

FIRST LOAD OF COTTON GATHERED
IN 1932 IS SOLD

Caruthersville, May 24.—The first load of cotton to be gathered in 1932 was sold here last week—but it was part of the 1931 crop.

J. I. Thomas has a farm a few miles south of Caruthersville. He let part of his 1932 crop stand in the field. This spring he planted one end of the field in new cotton and when the plants were up high enough to cultivate, picked the balance of his 1931 crop and sold it 1700 pounds in all to the Farmers Union Gin here, receiving one cent a pound. It will not be ginned, however, until the gin opens for fall business.

Keytesville—Jasper Coy and Harry Nye purchased barber fixtures of late Sidney Wilks.

Liberty—Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Berkley of Mulberry, opened branch of their funeral service here.

Eggs are better than any spring tonic, says the Bureau of Home Economics, United States Department of Agriculture. They are rich in iron for the formation of good red blood, vitamins that promote growth and assist in bone formation, and protein for body building and repair. One specialist in child nutrition says that one egg yolk a day in the young child's diet is a means of preventing rickets, and most authorities agree that every child over two years old should have a whole egg every day if possible.

Bennett Clark's Candidacy

Col. Bennett Clark is well remembered by many people outside Missouri as the efficient parliamentarian of the House of Representatives during the time his distinguished father, the late Champ Clark, was speaker. To the people of Missouri he is known as an able lawyer, an outstanding citizen of courage, character and ability.

He is a Democrat of the "old school" as we like to say of those who adhere to the principles of Jefferson and Jackson. He could not be otherwise with his inheritance. There is a distinct trend on the part of Democrats back to the fundamentals that made the party great in victory and enabled it to experience defeat without disaster.

Col. Clark has captivated the Democrats of Missouri because he represents all that a Democrat should be and his candidacy strengthens as the date approaches for the Democratic primary for United States senator. If nominated and elected he will reflect credit on the party, the State, and on the name he bears so creditably. —Commercial Appeal.

W. L. Bouchard, publisher of The Lead Belt News, and J. S. Hubbard, executive Secretary of the Missouri Press Association, paid The Standard a short visit Saturday forenoon. They were calling on all the newspaper fraternity in the interest of the Southeast Missouri Press Association that will hold its next meeting in the Lead Belt June 10 and 11. We expect to be present with a part of the force.

Newspaper readers experienced a chill a few days ago, when they read that a boy of eighteen had been hanged in Canada for his success as a pistol artist. The paper had hardly been thrown away before the news went round that a seventeen-year-old lad had been gathered in on this side of the line, for shooting it out with the police.

Those who favor capital punishment can reason that it is high time that the death penalty be handed out to Youth as well as to Age. Others may be inclined to argue that as a deterrent from crime, capital punishment appears to be of doubtful value.

Replacements in most lines can be had at a nominal cost, but a serious proposition confronts the Del Rey Hotel management. Once upon a time, he secured a whisky barrel and cut it in two to use as flower pots. He placed them at the side entrance, and strange to say it looks like every car that cuts in by the side entrance hits these whiskey flower pots, and now they are about wrecked with no replacement handy.

Throughout the land there is growing talk of "tax strikes". Many property owners are simply unable to pay the exorbitant levies demanded. We are gradually approaching a time when it will be cheaper to tear down many buildings, thus creating uninhabited properties, or allow the property to be taken over by the State, than to pay taxes. Is it any wonder that the best minds of the country are regarding the tax problem as the most serious, most far-reaching and most menacing issue the people now face?

ROOST ROBER TAKES 5-YEAR PRISON TERM

New Madrid, May 26.—Frank Torrents of Camalou, under a four-year parole, pleaded guilty in Circuit Court here to stealing chickens in the night time on four counts, and two charges of tampering with an automobile. He received a sentence of five years in the Missouri Reformatory at Bonnville. Constable Jess Wilkins accompanied Torrents and Walter Rose, juvenile, guilty of grand larceny, to the reformatory today. Rose pleaded guilty to the charge and received a three-year term.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to express our heartfelt thanks to everyone who was so kind to us in our late bereavement. Words can't express our appreciation for their kindness and beautiful flowers. Especially do we thank Bro. Garrison for his consoling words and the Modern Woodmen and Masonic lodges for their kindness. Also the National Guards who were so nice.

LIONS WILL "TRY"

JOE SARSAR NEXT WEEK IN "COURT"

Finding a huge pair of dice in the coat pockets of Joe Sarsar at the weekly luncheon meeting of the Sikeston Lions Club Wednesday at the Hotel Del Rey, was deemed circumstantial evidence sufficient to warrant a "trial" of the accused next Wednesday evening, June 1.

The next meeting, by the way, will be ladies' night. Lions and their lady friends, their wives or the wives of others, will meet at the Hotel Marshall dining room, and the trial of Joe Sarsar, charged with being in a crap game, will be one of the high spots of the evening.

It happened this way:

Frank Miller, day clerk at the hotel, slipped into the dining room during the song service being led by Wilbur Ensor. He whispered into the ear of John G. Powell, entertainment committee man for the day. The singing stopped.

"Gentlemen" said Mr. Powell, "word has just arrived that one of our number was surprised by the law just a few minutes before this meeting. He was one of a number involved in a crap game".

The suggestion that Tail Twister Benny Topper search the room was followed almost immediately by the discovery in Sarsar's pockets of a pair of he-man dice.

M. M. Beck and his guest, Judge Wylie P. Wilkerson, were pulled into the mess by implication. After quite a bit of cross talk, Judge T. B. Dudley was appointed attorney for the defendant, Joe Sarsar, and Wilkerson named prosecutor.

SENIOR-JUNIOR BANQUET AT CHARLESTON TAKES THEME FROM HIGHWAYS

Charleston, May 20.—The annual banquet tendered the Senior class of Charleston high school this year by members of the Junior Class—was held last Thursday evening in the dining room of the Methodist church and served by the ladies of that church.

Covers were laid for one hundred and twenty guests—a tables which were beautifully decorated with asparagus ferns and red and white roses arranged in crystal vases.

Baskets filled with red and white peonies were used throughout the room, and streamers of red and white dropped in graceful festoons from above. The lights were shaded in red and white.

The program for the evening road construction signs—"Detour" was the "Highway of Life", and "Danger" signals, were included in the decorations. In one corner a police station awaited the law maker.

In the main entrance to the dining room, a miniature highway was arranged on a large table—with growing trees on the road side and various signs.

Place cards were in shape of small car, truck, police whistle, road hogs, or some device pertaining to the highway.

Each young lady received a large fancy straw hat and the young men a bandana handkerchief.

The program opened with a welcome address given by the President of the Junior Class, Miss Virginia Whitehead.

STREET OILING TIME ARRIVES IN SIKESTON

According to Lon Swanner, the first of a number of cars of road oil was ordered May 19, and is expected to arrive here any day.

To date a relatively large number of home owners and property holders have expressed a wish to have streets in front of their premises coated with oil, but definite arrangements have not been made by many of them. City officials will not order oil applied to streets this year unless definite arrangements for payment are made.

NEEDED RAINS DODGE SIKESTON

The weather chart for the past seven days records daytime high temperatures of 78 to 85, nights continue to remain cool, but badly needed rains have dodged the area.

Clouds Wednesday afternoon appeared for a time to bring relief, but after teasing gardens, field crops and lawns with a very light sprinkle, the rain carriers moved on in the general direction of the River. Rains were reported, however, at Cape Girardeau, Benton and other nearby points.

Safe Way To Lose Fat

Take the case of Miss Madeline Crowley, for instance, who lives in Little Rock, Ark. Just read her letter:

"I have used Kruschen Salts for one year—when I started I weighed 140 pounds—now I weigh 110 pounds and never felt better in my life".

That's the big reason a host of men and women take Kruschen salts to lose weight—as the fat goes you gain in health—skin clears—eyes grow bright—activity replaces indolence.

Take one-half teaspoonful of Kruschen in a glass of hot water every morning before breakfast—cut down on fatty meats, potatoes and sweets—a jar of Kruschen that costs but a trifle lasts 4 weeks—get it at White's Drug Store or any drug store in the world—but for your health's sake demand and get Kruschen Salts.

Chapter XXIII

Corporal Michael Fitzpatrick could hardly wait until Saturday morning to strut before his youthful companions in his bright new uniform. Breakfast was hardly over before he gathered up his night-stick, put his cap on at an acute slant, and sauntered forth. His father had not been home all night, but he missed the morning ritual of a bear-hug and an admonition to be a good boy.

He paused on the doorstep, swung his stick, and began to whistle. It was nine o'clock and no school. All the other little boys in the neighborhood would be out. But he saw none of them, and furthermore he did not see Big Monty Monaghan, the cop on the corner. He was the one he wanted to impress more than anyone else. Who was Monaghan, anyway? Just an ordinary fat-foot. And who was he?—Corporal Michael Fitzpatrick!

So he strolled down toward the corner, a brave little figure who might have been a cop in Lilliput, twirling his stick as big as any policeman, and imbued with the authority of a corporal. He had gotten midway down the block when a car, long, sleek, black, with side curtains up, drew to the curb. Two men, pinch-backed coats and derbies set at the same angle, jumped out.

"Hello, there, copper!" one of them greeted, his thin lips wreathed in the semblance of a smile. *

"Hello!" exclaimed Mickey proudly.

"Your dad—you know, the Chief—told us to pick you up—we're goin' on a raid," said the second.

"Whatcha goin' to raid?" asked Mickey, striking a pose, one hand behind his coat-tails, the other swinging his rosewood.

"We got a big raid on—come on!" the first dapper-dressed young man caught Mickey by the arm.

"S-e-e-y!" exclaimed Mickey, drawing back. "Where's yer badge—are you dicks?"

Both threw back their coat lapels and displayed badges, which they quickly covered. Mickey looked at them curiously. But he would not be manhandled like this. He drew back.

"Take yer hands off'n me," he said, with dignity. "I'll get in—where's my dad?" *

"He's at the place we're goin' to raid," said one of the dapper young men. "Hurry up."

"Make it snappy—we ain't got much time," seconded the other.

Mickey looked around to see whether anyone had witnessed this recognition of his authority. But he saw no one. He climbed into the car. The two young fellows with derbies got behind him. The door slammed. The chauffeur, half looking back, muttered an "Okay," and the car shot forward.

One of the gunmen got on either side of Mickey, who was peering out, ready to wade at anyone who might be in sight.

"Hit it up, Mike!" cried one of the men, above the roar of the engine.

"Where're we goin'?" demanded Mickey, leaning back comfortably.

"You'd be surprised, copper!" said the second gunman. *

Mickey looked at him a second, and then sensing the evil look in his eye, drew back his club. The other one grabbed it. Mickey began to fight with tooth and toe. He kicked the derby off the young man on his right, and sank his teeth into the arm of the man on his right.

A big hand closed over his mouth, but Mickey would have screamed. For Mickey fought his battles silently. But the big hand closed on his wind, and he could not breathe; and the car had not gone ten blocks before the little fellow sank back with a sigh.

In a cigar-store down on the river front, where the fog almost obscured the entrance and where it belched in when the door was open, a solitary figure entered. The man, his cap down on his forehead, his head lowered in his coat-collar, walked up to the counter. *

"Gimme a package o' cigarettes," he said in muffled tones.

CHAPTER II

Night Court was about to begin. The room was two-thirds filled. Among the spectators were a number of women, mostly poorly clad, but the men outnumbered the women four to one. Inside the railing was a long line of prisoners; near them almost an equal number of policemen, their accusers. The prisoners were also mostly women-painted creatures of uncertain age, with here and there an older woman, and a few girls innocent of make-up, with pinched features, clothes that needed the pressing iron and the needle. The room was warm with the odor of human beings in need of a bath, the scent of strong perfume.

Sergeant Cassidy arose, saying in a loud voice: "Hats off! His Honor, the Judge."

As the magistrate stepped from his private office into the court room the mass of humanity rose up, the men removing their hats, until he had taken his seat at the bench, when they sank back in their seats. The last person in the court room to sit down was a tall spare man with trouble with her. She darn near chewed the hand off me this time," said the Judge.

"Attaboy, Judge," and the tipsy old woman leered up at him, the three youths ready to press his case.

"And don't come back here again," added the Judge in his severest tones.

"Come back, is it? I didn't come here; I was brang, and it took off a big husky policeman to do it! I may be only a woman, but—"

"Take her away," thundered the Judge.

Three hard-faced young men, well kindly dressed, were brought up to the railing. Henry Crawford stepped hastily up to the little platform in front of the bench and spoke to the Judge in a low voice.

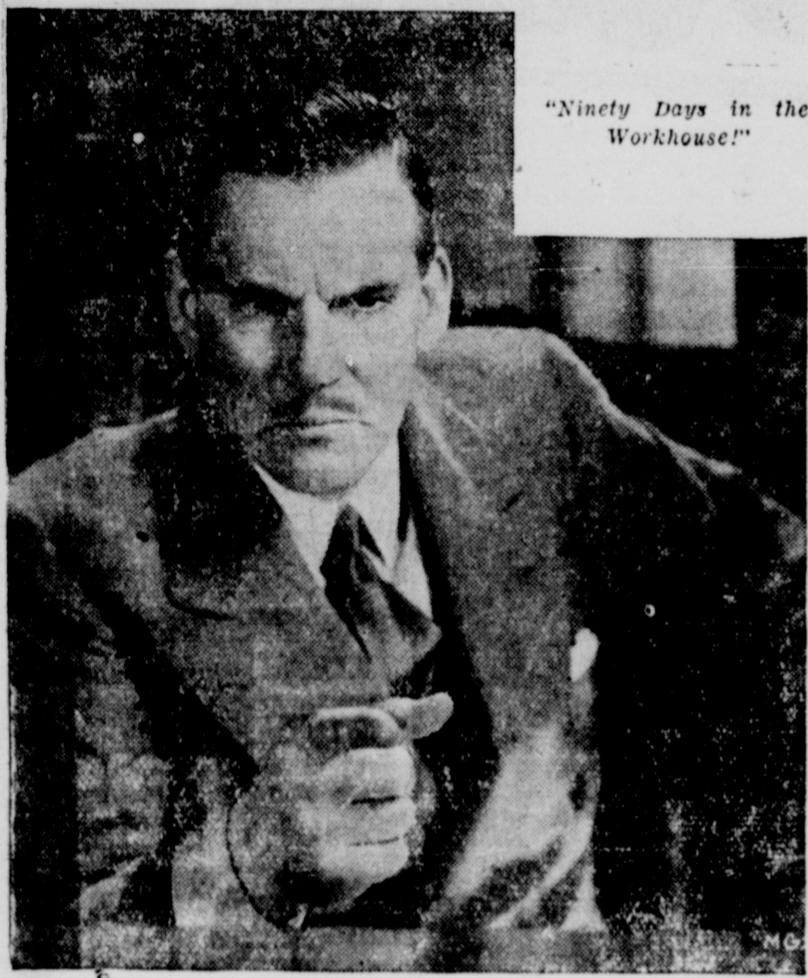

"This is my case, Your Honor."

Moffett, with scarcely a glance at the three accused, ran his eyes over the complaints that the court clerk had placed before him.

"The detective plainclothes stood by charge. The Court addressed him.

"You are the complainant in this case. What have you to say about it?"

"Ninety Days in the Workhouse!"

white hair, a closely-trimmed white mustache, an intellectual cast of features. He was very quiet and unobtrusive, but his keen eyes watched every detail of the varying scenes that took place at the Judge's bench.

The court clerk carrying a bunch of papers stepped to the magistrate's side, and laid the complaints on the bench. Before he had time to step down a policeman detached himself from the head of line of waiting prisoners and complainants, his hand on the arm of a hard-faced, moderately well-dressed young woman. The Judge glanced hastily at the first of the bunch of complaints then looked down at the prisoner.

"You are charged with loitering on the corner of Fifth Avenue and Forty-second street. What have you got to say for yourself?"

"Judge, I—"

Moffett interrupted her unceremoniously and barked at the policeman:

"What do you know about her?"

"She's an old timer, Your Honor."

"Ten dollars!" said the Judge in a hard voice.

The same procedure was followed in three or four more cases of girls loitering on the streets. Moffett merely glanced at the complaints, heard the arresting officer's accusations in a bored manner, and meted out the sentences: "Ten dollars," "Thirty days," "You here again?" "Ninety days," "Five dollars." Some of the girls simpered; some hung the Judge a hard look; a few hung their heads in shame, making no answer to the complaints against them. The sordid drama ended every night to an audience of the curious, of sight-seers, professional bondsmen, pimps, young women of uncertain occupation, friends of the accused, now and then a relative.

The clock-like procedure of the court, the listening to complaints, pronouncement of judgment, was interrupted by the cries of a drunken old woman who was being dragged by two policemen in front of the Judge, each holding her by an arm. When they reached the railing, the old woman clutched it eagerly, holding herself erect by the strength of her grasp. The coat of one policeman was torn, the other's hand was wrapped about with surgical bandages.

"Well?" questioned Moffett, looking up from the complaint. "What have you to say?"

"Your Honor, I was going along the street peacefully and this officer came up and insulted me. He said I'd been drinking."

"And you're drunk now," said the Judge, severely.

The woman removed her hands from the railing to gesture freely her denial.

"Your Honor, I never touched a drop in my life. I'm a hard-working old woman and I—"

She had been swaying against the railing and now lost her balance. With a wild, vain attempt to seize the railing again, she sank to the floor. The two policemen seized her by the arms and raised her to her feet.

"Save any trouble with her?"

Moffett asked the struggling policeman, a gleam of cold amusement in his eyes.

"Your Honor, we always have Good morning, Judge Moffett. Here's your paper, sir."

The Judge smiled pleasantly at the old fellow, stuck the newspaper in his overcoat pocket without looking at it.

In the early hours of the morning the last of the prisoners had been fined, freed or sent to prison and Judge Moffett appeared on the sidewalk in front of the Night Court followed by Grogan, and signalled to a passing taxicab. His face was calm and unmoved as it had been when he opened court. He did not appear to be tired. As he waited for the cab, an old, disheveled man who walked with a limp, approached him, a bundle of papers under his arm.

"Good morning, Judge Moffett. Here's your paper, sir."

The Judge smiled pleasantly at the old fellow, stuck the newspaper in his overcoat pocket without looking at it.

"How are you anyhow, Jimmy?"

"Fine, thank you, Your Honor."

Moffett gave the old fellow a dime and turned and stepped to the taxi which had drawn up in front of the court entrance. As he climbed in he called a good night to Grogan.

"Good night, Boss. See you in the morning." Then he gave the address to the chauffeur: "Thirteen twenty-one West Ninety-third street."

Moffett settled back in the cab carefully bit off the end of a cigar, lighted it and began to smoke it in quiet enjoyment. After a few puffs he pulled the newspaper from his pocket and opened it to the front page headlines. An expression of amazement and horror spread over his face at what he saw; his mouth opened and the cigar fell unheeded to the floor of the cab.

"GOVERNOR ORDERS INVESTIGATION OF COURTS" screamed the streamer clear across the page of the newspaper. A three-column head below read: "SUPREME COURT JUSTICE OSGOOD OUTLINES HIS PLANS—THE NIGHT COURT IS THE FOCAL POINT OF GRAFT AND CORRUPTION."

Judge Moffett stared at the headlines as though stunned, a smile curling up from the still lighted cigar on the floor of the taxi caught his eye. He let the newspaper fall on his knee, stamped out the cigar, and tapped smartly on the window. The driver opened the window and turned slightly in his seat to look after them.

The rest of the spectators were watching the next case. A young woman with white, haggard face, poorly but neatly dressed, was at the railing. She was a sort of bravo, the stoolie, the street-walker. In which she looked up at the magistrate. Her appearance was not that of a street-walker; her face and lips were innocent of rouge and lipstick, so white that it was almost bloodless. She might have been a stenographer or a clerk.

"What is the charge?" asked the Judge.

The arresting officer, a detective in plain clothes, with his badge on the lapel of his coat, handed up the complaint. A quick glance, and Moffett resumed his inspection of the girl.

"Take me to nine eighty-one Park Avenue. And quickly!"

The chauffeur stepped on the gas so猛 that the car leaped forward like a horse into whose sides spurs have been dug.

Judge Moffett turned back to the newspaper. There was a portrait of Supreme Court Justice Osgood underneath the lower headline. He was an elderly, intellectual appearing man with close-cropped white mustache and white hair.

"She asked me if I didn't want to take her to supper," said the detective, a smirk spreading over his face.

"She asked me if I didn't want to take her to supper," said the detective, a smirk spreading over his face.

"And what did you say to that?"

"I asked her what she wanted to do afterwards. She said she didn't care."
